

flying today is bad enough. we do not need people screaming into their cellphones in the adjacent seat, bringing us into their business and social lives